LOCAL BOYS FIRST TROOPS AT CAMP DOUGLAS MILITIA TO BE SENT TO THE BORDER AT ONCE TWELVE AMERICANS REPORTED KILLED IN BATTLE

10TH CAVALRY ATTACKED WHEN OFFICER REFUSES COMMAND TO WITHDRAW

Carranzists Cut Loose From Ambush With Machine Guns And Twelve Troopers Are Killed And Seventeen Captured

EL PASO, June 22.—Doubt concerning the Carrizal battle reported between troopers of the Tenth cavalry and Carranzistas was the chief factor in the border situation today. Early reports that forty Americans had been killed, which came from Mexican sources, were scaled down to twelve dead by Consul Garcia, Mexican official here. In the meantime, United States army headquarters were wondering what explanation lies behind the fact that General Pershing has heard nothing of the battle. The Tenth cavalry is part of Pershing's command.

Pershing wired today that the first word he had of the engagement came from General Bell, at El Paso, who wired him for details.

Early reports said that forty troopers of the Tenth, a Negro regiment, had been slain when they were ambushed by Carranza troops at Carrizal, 130 miles southwest of El Paso. Seventeen were reported captured. Consul Garcia's later statement brought the reported casualties of the Americans to twelve. He said the regulars were reported to have carried off a number of wounded. The Mexicans lost fourteen killed and many wounded, Garcia said.

Fired on Orders

The Carranza troops opened fire on the United States cavalry at Carrizal on War Minister Obregon's orders. General Gonzales, commander in Juarez, announced today he had received Obregon's message to this effect.

General Francisco Gonzales, commander of the Juarez garrison, admitted the clash occurred with an unknown number killed and wounded on each side, saying Lieutenant Colonel Genevive Rivas sent a message by courier to Ahumada, whence it was telegraphed to Juarez. Gonzales made a statement, saying that when he learned Tuesday night that Americans had reached Santo Domingo ranch, he ordered Gomez to demand that the Americans withdraw.

The American commander replied he intended going to Ahumada and remained stationary. A second message was sent, and disregarded.

The Americans wounded the captain bearing the dispatch, and killed one Mexican soldier.

Rush More Troops

Reinforcements were rushed today to the aid of the Tenth cavalry, victims of the ambush by Mexicans. El Paso and the army headquarters were still anxiously awaiting today full report of the fight near Carrizal.

The Mexican authorities confess complete ignorance of the extent of the Mexican casualties in the battle which followed ambushing of the Negro troopers of five companies of the Tenth. Latest reports are that the troopers were lured into the hamlet of Carrizal under a flag of truce yesterday. They stuck to their claim that there were forty Americans killed and seventeen captured.

To Evacuate Juarez

Realizing that war may come as a result of the treacherous killing of the Americans by the Carranzista forces, General Francisco Gonzales, de facto commander at Juarez, opposite El Paso, was preparing for any contingency. General Bell, in command of the American troops in this section, moved his men forward, planted artillery where it swept the Mexican city in range and even ordered preliminary intrenchments around the Texas town. The mesa overlooking Juarez bristled with a battery of the big 4.7 inch American guns.

Caught by Treachery

From reports received by state department agents, mining companies and the Carranzista officials here, it appears that five troops of the Tenth cavalry were on scout duty near Carrizal when they were discovered by Carranzista outposts. These Mexican troopers hastened back to the hamlet. General Felix Gomez, commanding the de facto troops in the town,

DE FACTO FORCES QUIT JUAREZ AND AMERICANS FLEE

EL PASO, Tex., June 22.—Juarez, the Mexican border town opposite El Paso, is being evacuated today.

Before dawn two troop trains left Juarez for the south, loaded with Carranza soldiers and many civilians. They were riding a-top cars and hanging on the sides.

It is expected that all soldiers excepting possibly a small guard, will leave Juarez before night.

General Trevino, commander of the de facto government's forces in Chihuahua, is concentrating most of his strength in the vicinity of Villa Ahumada. This has been his base since the American punitive expedition entered Mexico.

MILWAUKEE, June 22.—Gov. E. L. Phillip this afternoon announced the appointment of Captain Lorraine Richardson as brigadier-general to head the Wisconsin National Guard.

BY N. D. TEVIS

(Tribune Staff Correspondent.) CAMP DOUGLAS, Wis., June 22.—(Special.)—La Crosse troops, roaring out a song that was hastily manufactured almost before the troop train left Grand Crossing, were the first infantry to arrive at mobilization camp today. They detrained at 9:45.

Fine Song For Noise

The song the boys are singing is not much of a song as regards poetry, and it is calculated to make a regular composer drop dead as regards tune, also put together by the La Crosse soldiers. But as a noise-maker it leaves nothing to be desired. This is how it runs:

"We're going to have a hot time, Mr. Johnson.
We're going to have a hot time, Bye and bye.
For a long time we've been freagin' Dat am the very reason.
Why.
(Pause, then shout:)
SO ENJOY YOURSELF!"

The trip to camp was one long ovation. From the downtown station clear to Grand Crossing the right of way was lined with thousands who cheered the troop train. At the rubber mills the entire working force was on the tracks, and there were sky-splitting shouts for the eleven rubber mills boys who are with the troops.

At every station there were big crowds, and at Tomah what must have been the entire population was gathered at the station. They cheered and waved to the troops, and a

STATE TROOPS WILL GO TO BORDER WITH LEAST POSSIBLE WAIT

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Orders were issued this afternoon for the militia of Missouri, Kansas and California to leave for the border when ready. Secretary Baker made the announcement.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—As fast as the different units can be equipped they will be sent to the border. Secretary of War Baker stated, following a conference with President Wilson.

General invasion of Mexico appeared to hover just ahead today.

The Carrizal clash between Mexican government and American troops, apparently resulting in the American expedition's heaviest losses to date, gave ground for this view officially.

General Funston will immediately strengthen Pershing's column it is expected and President Wilson may take the case before congress.

There he would ask for appropriate tion and approval of a drive into Mexico, in keeping with his threat to Carranza to visit upon him "gravest consequences" if the de facto forces clashed with Americans.

The last thought that Carranza is making a serious effort to check the inflamed passions of his people, vanished early today when General Pershing forwarded a copy of orders, fathered by Carranza to resist further American crossing of the border and to swell the Mexican army by disarming those who would not join it.

This convinced the administration that it now can hope for nothing from the first chief and his crumbling power.

A few high officials counselled calm until Pershing reported, pointing out that information now before this government is from Mexican sources. Others were for wasting no time in establishing an actual state of war.

No one professed seriously that trouble can now be avoided.

Dispatch of the California, Missouri and Kansas militia immediately to the border was directed. This, it was expected, would be followed by orders to incompletely mobilized militia to board fast troop trains for the boundary.

It seemed likely that all red tape would be cut.

CHEERS AND TEARS SPEED THE SOLDIERS OFF FOR THE FRONT

Brave Smiles Mark Tear-Stained Faces As The Soldiers Say Last Farewells And Climb Aboard Train

With a cheer in its throat and a tear in its eye, La Crosse today sent its two hundred young men to the front. While bands blared national airs, and every steam whistle and bell in town rocked the skies with its racket, the troops entrained and got away promptly at 7:30.

The military necessity was inexorable, and it was found necessary to cut short part of the program arranged for the send-off. But there was time enough for Attorney C. L. Hood, veteran of the civil war, to give the advice of a veteran and the blessing of the city to the khaki-clad ranks standing gravely at attention in front of him.

Although word from the border this morning has brought home to the city more acutely the fact that this is not likely to be a pleasure encampment, but grim business from very shortly after the start, there was none the less enthusiasm. Mothers and girls in the crowd had red-rimmed eyes and tear-stained cheeks, but there were brave smiles on their lips.

More than 10,000 people, it is estimated, gathered at the Milwaukee station to see the boys off. A flat-car draped with bunting had been placed on a track across State street at the station, whereon the city committee appointed to arrange the farewell, Mr. Hood, and the guard of honor of civil war veterans were seated. A roped enclosure had been cleared by the police for the troops when they should arrive.

GREAT GATHERING IN RIVER PARK CITY FAREWELL

Exalted Spirit of Patriotism is Dominant Note of Assemblage of 15,000 People

AGED VETERAN IS CHEERED

Eighty-year-old Judge Cronon Declares Willingness to Offer Life Again on Nation's Altar

More than 15,000 people, the greatest assemblage, it is believed, since the construction of Riverside park, gathered on the river bank last night for a farewell demonstration to the militiamen, who left today for Camp Douglas and the Mexican border. An exalted spirit of patriotism was the dominant note of the great gathering, which broke in repeated waves of applause as the speakers touched upon the reasons for the assemblage. The climax was reached when Judge Edward Cronon, his silver head nodding emphasis, his sleeve emptied in the Civil war conspicuous at his side, declared his willingness, if need were, to offer his life again upon the altar of national need.

Patriotic airs stirring rendered by the north side band, a couple of red, white and blue fire balloons which some enthusiast sent flickering into the breezy sky, and through all the vast crowd the frequent dot of olive-drab khaki which marked where a soldier stood with wife or sweetheart, gave point to the occasion. Even on the band-stand, the insistent olive-drab was not lacking. Melvin Lokken, president of the North Side band, was playing his last concert for some time to come. He is a member of the Third Regiment hospital corps, and left today for Camp Douglas.

Great Crowd There Early

The crowd began to gather by 6:20. At 7 o'clock there were more than a thousand people in the park, and it was an almost impenetrable mass of humanity shortly after 7:30.

The streets in all directions about the stand, and the station platform were jammed with people. Every factory window overlooking the scene was crowded with heads. Conspicuous in one window was a gentle-faced, gray haired woman, who kept a handkerchief pressed tightly to her lips and blinked bravely at the starting tears.

"She has a son in Company B," someone whispered.

It was a brave sight as the troops poured down State street. They had been escorted from their armories by the North Side and Andre bands. Very soldierly they looked as they came swinging down between the applauding thousands lining the streets, their heads up, every rifle at the exact slant, every foot thudding on the bricks as one. They were in heavy marching order, with blanket rolls, canteens, haversacks, and all of the other paraphernalia swinging from their waists and web-tharness.

There was a noticeable bulge to the haversacks. The boys took away with them what the orders called "two cooked meals." They were prepared at home, and the state's will give 25 cents each for the meals, but from the bulge of the haversacks, and the glimpses of goodies which were seen at the armories when the boys compared notes before starting, the state won't foot the entire bill by a little.

The distinctive feature of the last farewell demonstration this morning was its repression. There was a little cheering, but nothing like the great volume of sound that huge, tightly packed mass of humanity could have sent forth had it united all its throats in the effort. There were obviously very few who felt like cheering. They applauded, and called "so-long" to the boys, but they were just a little to full of this good-bye to trust their voices in yelling and mere noise.

When the band blared around the

BENTLEY PLEDGES THE CITY'S CARE FOR DEFENDANTS

In Short But Powerful Talk He Assures Departing Soldiers of Welfare to Those at Home

WAR HAS PRESSED UPON U. S.

The City's Relation to Soldiers is Duty of Caring for Their Families Says Executive

On behalf of the city of La Crosse, Mayor Arthur A. Bentley last night pledged to the departing soldiers the word of the city that those they leave behind will be taken care of. In a short but stirring address, His Honor expressed the city's sense of obligation to the militiamen at the huge farewell gathering in Riverside park. The mayor was the first speaker on the program. His address follows:

"The United States of America, the most powerful republic in all history, has been busy for years past in the pursuit of commercial activities. The thought of our people has been toward the development of our natural resources, and the commercial spirit of our land has been a great influence in shaping the lives of the late generations.

Force Last Resort
"Peace-loving, strong, secure in our belief in the prevalence of right, we have thought too little of the eternal problem of society which towers above all others, the supreme problem of all nations which is conspicuously displayed in the insufficiency of governments to adjust their affairs to the harmonious acceptance of other governments. The great problems of republics of nations in all history have been settled largely by the use of force with the resulting consequence that much of the history of the world so far as we know tonight has been written in the trail behind mighty armies.

"Our republic has thought little of war. Our great commercial interests have held our attention but we still cling to those national ideals that count largely for peace. We have thought more of these ideals and of the development of our natural resources, than of conquest for commercial gain. The acquiring of territory has had no place worthy of attention in our national life. A mighty republic whose ideals are undoubtedly those most pleasing to the great Creator, a mighty republic that assures to each individual citizen a full measure of justice and of blessings, and a nation loving right more than wrong, we stand tonight in a world engaged in a great conflict.

Face Fight for Principle
"The thought of war has pressed itself upon us, and in its loud acclaim and effrontery it has arrested our attention against our will and tonight, we are facing the possibility of it being necessary to sacrifice our manhood, to sacrifice our blood to sustain and emphasize those principles that have made us the just and powerful nation that we are in this hour.

"Our brothers, our husbands, our sons, are leaving our city in answer to the call to arms from the nation that gives them all those magnificent advantages that are everywhere about the individual citizen in this republic. They leave us in answer to the call to duty. Their loyalty, their patriotism, is unquestioned in this hour. They go gladly, to render service to their country.

"After our boys have departed, our thought must turn to the duties of the hour before us who are left behind. These duties are many and varied, some of which are to live the patriotism and the loyalty that is to be the sustaining force in the life of the departed soldier—not to preach it alone. It is not sufficient to acclaim it from the platform, nor does the display of the stars and stripes make up the sum total, but in a land of such wonderful natural resources, in a land that is so richly blessed with commercial activities are so varied, so alluring, it is not alone our privilege, but it is our unavoidable duty, it is a fixed obligation upon us, to guarantee to the families and relatives of every soldier who has gone to the front in our behalf, in the behalf of our country, to defend the national ideals of our republic—to see to it that each and every individual left behind dependent upon the income of the departed soldier, be given—not in charity, but to be paid as an obligation that we owe—every dollar that any dependent will be deprived of by reason of the absence of any soldier.

Pledges Last Dollar
Therefore, our only relation as citizens of La Crosse, to those who will leave tomorrow, is not as neighbors, as fathers and brothers, but as business partners and business associates, and we pledge you tonight, my brave comrades, that so long as we have a dollar of resources, that so long as money is circulated, that those who are left behind tonight will be cared for the same as our own and nearest kin. The great municipal family of La Crosse pledges you our support, not in any other spirit more than in the spirit of business partnership, and may the God of all nations, and the Creator of all the earth, keep ever fresh and blooming in our national life, those great ideals of patriotism, of righteousness, of justice that sustains the hope of the ultimate salvation of the world, and the entire elimination of war. With this thought in your hearts to encourage you, permit me as your mayor, to bid you God speed, and to convey to you an expression of confidence in your nobility of purpose, confidence in your efficiency, confidence in your devotion to your work, confidence in the hour of trial, distinguish yourselves, your country,

ALL POSITIONS TO BE OPEN FOR RETURNING MEN

La Crosse factory owners and managers, store proprietors and other employers of local national guardsmen who this morning entrained for Camp Douglas to mobilize in preparation for the trip to the Mexican border, were as one yesterday in declaring that every position would be kept open for the militiamen.

"We will welcome them back with open arms," said one employer. The vacancies will be filled, but those taking the places of the guardsmen will be told that the positions are only temporary.

A movement was on foot yesterday to have the factories delay opening today until after the militia has left, in order that their workers may take part in the farewell demonstration. The Segelke-Kohlhaus company and the Wisconsin Pearl Button company were among the first to decide that the doors will not open until 5 o'clock.

Among local concerns which have lost guardsmen are:

The C. L. Colman Lumber company, employing one man; The La Crosse Plow company, four men; The La Crosse Rubber Mills company, eleven men; The Segelke-Kohlhaus Manufacturing company, eight men; The Wisconsin-Minnesota Light and Power company, four men; The Wisconsin Pearl Button company, three men; The Boertlinger company, three men; The Tribune Publishing company, one man. All places, it was said at the offices yesterday, will be held open.

PRISONERS ARE STUDENTS

LANSING, Kas., June 22.—Thirty-one prisoners in the state penitentiary here yesterday held certificates for the completion of a year's work in the extension department of the Kansas agricultural college. President H. J. Waters of K. S. A. presented the certificates in the first graduation exercises within prison walls.

The less veracity a man has of his own the more he admires it in other men.

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Take Salts to flush Kidneys and neutralize irritating acids.

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders; caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.

TREVINO PREPARES TO PERSONALLY TAKE FIELD SAY REFUGEES

EL PASO, Texas, June 22.—General Trevino, commander of the north, is preparing to leave Chihuahua City with his staff, personally to take the field, refugees here declared.

Reports received by state department agents indicate that the de facto government is making every preparation for hostilities. Troops are being mobilized, recruiting is going on and large forces are being sent to northern points.

Recent arrivals reported anti-American demonstrations in several Mexican states, encouraged by officers of the de facto government.

General Pershing was reported yesterday to be at Colonia Dublan, where his largest force is entrenched. Preparations have been made to rush reinforcements to Amiquipa, if the American troops there are attacked.

Motor trucks leaving Columbus with ammunition and supplies for the punitive expedition are heavily guarded. Machine guns have been mounted on the wagons. Commanders ordered drivers to keep the trucks in the motor trains together in order to act more effectively if attacked. Practically all trains returning to Columbus reported sniping.

PIONEER OF MONROE COUNTY IS DEAD

SPARTA, Wis., June 22.—Telephone messages to Rev. H. F. Flock and other friends here yesterday announced the death of Henry C. Cremer, at his home near Cashton, following an illness of several months.

Mr. Cremer was a pioneer resident of western Monroe county, and was widely known and esteemed in this and adjoining counties. Funeral services will take place Thursday at 9 a. m. at St. Mary's church.

Deserter Arrested
James F. Robinson, who is alleged to be a deserter from the U. S. army, was arrested at the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul station by detectives who were on the lookout for him.

The report is that Robinson was in active service on the Mexican border, that he deserted and went to Grand Rapids intending to marry a girl there, but had come to Sparta for a short visit and here he was arrested.

He was taken to Springfield, Mo., to answer to a charge of grand larceny there. He signed a paper, stating his agreement to go, and exonerating the officers of Sparta from any interference in the matter.

Local and Personal
Degree work is expected tonight at the meeting of Valley Lodge, F. and M. A. M., in Masonic hall.

Miss Sophie Booth, who has been a guest of Dr. and Mrs. J. F. Brown at the state school, is now visiting in Mazamania, but will return to Sparta for a short visit before proceeding to her home in Montana.

Mrs. H. G. Oaks of Tunnel City spent a couple of days with her father, D. M. Cargill, who is in poor health. She returned to her home yesterday.

Mrs. Bernard Mitchell and child from Superior are visiting in the city at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Hubbard.

Mrs. Miller, formerly Miss Ida Stafford of West Superior, has been visiting friends in the city. She lived in Sparta about thirty years ago and has greatly enjoyed renewing old acquaintances.

Miss Alma Winterfield has returned home from Rochester, where she underwent an operation for goitre in the Mayo Brothers' hospital.

Mrs. Collins and son John of Naperville, Ill., are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Newton.

Mrs. Jack Stamper has gone to Minneapolis to join her husband, who has a position there. She has been ill at her mother's home here for several weeks, the result of a fall from a motorcycle, but is now convalescent.

Mrs. Ernest Nagel and daughters, Mrs. Ruth Smith and Miss Blanche Nagel of Minneapolis, have been visiting relatives the past two weeks in Sparta, Melrose and vicinity, returned to their home yesterday.

Alex Hanson, a graduate of Sparta high school, who has prospered elsewhere, has been in town a few days at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Matt Hanson. He is working for the Standard Oil company and is chief clerk in the Standard office at Duluth.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Joe Dana, June 19, a son.

Robert McPeak has moved his family to La Crosse, where they will make their home.

FORCES LINED UP AS IN ACTUAL WARFARE

COLUMBUS, N. M., June 22.—General Pershing's forces are lined up as in actual warfare, according to information received here yesterday. His scouting lines extend far in every direction.

Need of aeroplanes for scouting purposes is sorely felt. Pershing has been almost entirely dependent for news of the Mexican troops, on so-called "friendly" Mexican peddlers and peons, now prohibited from entering the American camps, which fear spies.

All defensive works at the base camps and along the communication lines have been enlarged and also strengthened. With the situation apparently approaching a crisis, the censorship here yesterday was made stricter than at any time since the expedition entered Mexico.

The new moon is like a giddy young girl—not old enough to show much reflection.

A PATCHWORK HOUSE

A house having walls comprised of fifty-six different patches, each 14x9 feet in size is one of the unique constructions evolved at the Bureau of Standards to show the results of the stucco tests which have been in progress there for months. Each patch represents a different kind of stucco and in each a window casing has been set to test the liability of the stucco to crack around openings. The construction of each patch was under the direction of a skilled workman and the formulas for the stucco have been filled with scientific precision. An immense boiler for testing the quality of the stucco before mixing was erected as a part of the special apparatus used in the tests. This patchwork cottage will be in position for some time in order that the effects of the weather upon its parts may be fully tested.

The old smithy in Medford, Mass., noteworthy ever since Longfellow wrote his poem, "The Village Blacksmith," under its inspiration, has just been torn down to make room for a new building.

THE CITY AND ITS SOLDIERS

Our boys in khaki leave La Crosse without any misgivings as to where they stand with the home people. Never in the history of the city has there been so splendid a demonstration of the fact that La Crosse is a city with a sense of itself and an appreciation of its larger obligations. Just now the one great, outstanding obligation is that owed to the men who have dropped the implements of civil life to take up the tools of war in defense of home. What a feeling of power it all gave one—that genuine patriotism displayed in ringing cheers at the "Good Luck Dinner" tendered by the Elks, that vast assemblage of people at the Riverside Park demonstration, that early morning assemblage of citizens paying their last respects to the departing soldiers. Back of that outward evidence of good will and loyalty was the more substantial thing—the businesslike and systematic arrangement, made by citizens "without fuss and feathers", to care for the families of the guardsmen during their absence.

What an answer it has been to the critic who has dared to question the virility of American citizenship. Perhaps nowhere has a community arisen more nobly and sufficiently to the necessities and human justice of such an occasion, but let it be understood that throughout the land similar scenes were being enacted with the same splendid motives and high resolve. As one watched the inspiring proceedings, the "concoursus bonorum omnium" in La Crosse, and realized that in every pore of a great country the same picture of Americanism was being flashed upon life's screen, the consciousness of a mighty nationhood thrilled one with awe and gratitude.

The swiftness with which the plans were effected, the efficient co-operation on all sides, the ready leadership of the mayor and the officers of the Board of Trade, the Manufacturers' and Jobbers' club and the Elks' lodge, the fine assistance rendered by every citizen to whom came the great opportunity—the aggregate of these and the complete success thereby achieved—give inspiring promise for the triumph of La Crosse's greatest civic undertaking, the organization of all its intelligence, means and ability in a powerful central machine to promote every variety and phase of public and private activity and welfare. The men who did the work of the past two days—what task is too heavy for their brains and hands!

To every citizen who watched the straight, active young men in the khaki lines there must have come a feeling of pride in the high standard of our soldier boys. They are a clean-cut, manly lot of fellows—not the machine infantrymen, but men in whose countenances the light of intelligence shines. We shall be bravely and honorably represented at the front. We hate to see our boys go on an errand so sinister, but we thrill with a sense of their strong, unafraid manhood and know the feeling of security the good soldier awakens. And so sadly, gladly, sharing their courage, we bid them God speed and repeat the best word ever spoken to a departing soldier:

"Don't worry about the folks at home!"

PERSHING DEFIANCE THE EAGLES FLY OF TREVINO ORDER TO GRAND RAPIDS CAUSE OF BATTLE

This is Version of the Clash Given Out by War Office in Mexico City

MEXICO CITY, June 22.—General Pershing's defiance of the instructions given him by General Trevino to make no further advance into Mexico caused the battle at Carrizal station on the Mexican central railroad, the war office announced today.

The official statement reported that the battle occurred on Sunday, June 18. The American forces were moving southward when the engagement occurred. They were driven back and seventeen taken prisoners. General Felix Gomez was fatally wounded and died after the battle.

WOULD APPREHEND ALL PERSONS TRYING TO FOMENT TROUBLE

LAREDO, Texas, June 22.—Sheriff Salinas issued a proclamation to Mexicans yesterday in line with Governor Ferguson's recent manifesto. He requested all Mexicans to report any person attempting to foment revolts or disturbances against Americans. He guaranteed protection to all who keep the peace and advised them they are in no danger so long as they show themselves law abiding citizens.

Despite the proclamation, Mexican residents continue to leave for the other side.

Where Was It?
Sandy Macgregor lived not a hundred miles from Aberdeen. He recently visited London and on starting his homeward journey found he had lost his pocket book containing 50 pounds. So he telegraphed to the London station reporting his loss and stating that the package should be kept until his next journey south a month later.

In due time he turned up and the pocket book was handed to him. The finder, a young porter, stood by expectantly while Sandy carefully counted his money.

Then the Scot gazed long and searchingly at the clerk in the inquiry office.

"What's the trouble?" asked the latter anxiously. "Isn't it all right?"

"Aye, it's right enough," replied Sandy sternly, "bit whaur's the month's interest?"

His Viewpoint

"Mercy!" ejaculated young Mrs. Kidder, in the midst of her reading.

"Here is an account of a woman who sold her baby for 50 cents."

"Oh, well," returned her bachelor brother, who had at sundry times cared for the children while his sister went shopping, "all kinds of swindles are being worked nowadays."—Kansas City Star.

Professional Viewpoint

The gentleman and the detective whom he had once employed in a private capacity met in an elevator.

"Glad to see you," said the gentleman. "How are you getting on?"

"Badly, very badly," said the detective; "no thieves, no blackmailing, no divorces. The world is going to rack and ruin, I say."—New York Times.

Bad Outlook For the Angels

Grandma was very strict with little neil making him pick up his playthings and put them away when he was through with them. He was going out to see his dog one day and when grandma called him back he said: "I'll bet the angels will be sorry when you get to heaven, grandma."

THE TRIBUNE'S DAILY TRAVELETTE

(By Nikkah)

CARTAGENA

Cartagena is a picturesque old seaport on the northern coast of South America. Interesting nowadays for what it used to be rather than what it is. Fronting on a perfect harbor with pleasant green hills sloping up behind its grey walls and red-roofed houses, it would be more popular with people of the north if it were somewhat healthier and a great deal cooler. The sun beats down through a moist heat, and the unacclimatized are prone to sicken in Cartagena with great suddenness.

There is no town in either of the Americas that is a more perfect example of what Spain could build in the days of her greatest power. The mistress of the Indies made this port her greatest western stronghold. The massive walls still stand with their old towers well preserved; the ancient castles are no longer capable of menacing a hostile fleet, but they loom up with a bold and warlike front. Here you may see the grim old building that was for centuries the headquarters of the Inquisition in the New World.

The city is built after the Moorish style rather than the pure Spanish colonial that is more common in Mexico and South America. The streets are narrow and winding, paved with rough cobbles, though modern Cartagena has threaded them with trolley lines and lighted them with electric arcs. Barred windows jut out from square old mansions with an agreeable suggestion of mystery and romance; crowded gardens overlooking the narrow causeways. The scene is set for gallants with rapiers and guitars.

Cartagena still shows many scars of battle, for she had a hard life of it in the past. As she was the principal stronghold of Spain, all Spain's enemies attacked her first when they moved on to the Americas. English buccaners sacked her half a dozen times. The English Admiral Vernon besieged the city unsuccessfully for months, but in spite of his poor success he inspired such admiration in a young colonial officer that the latter named an American country estate for the admiral. The officer was one Lawrence Washington, and he named the country place Mount Vernon.

CHAPTER XVIII
In the Face of Failure

We were quite too stupefied for comment. Virgil, standing within six feet of that apparition, was the first to recover. He made a downward motion of his hand to the helmsman and the power was shut from the Seabird's propeller. The tow-line slid to the water, and the heavier Good Child floated alongside. The Texan had sat down on the hatch cover and was regarding his prize.

The Baron John Bernal de Vedrinnes, one time of Austria and the Louisiana Lottery Company, seemed heaving a sigh of satisfaction and even comprehension. He set his green cap back on his left ear, and then I saw he had a fearful wound across his pink head. It was bound up with a bit of lacy stuff but this had fallen quite away. And now his eyes went to the deck near Virgil's feet, he advanced and picked up something, cocking his head sideways and yet with a great and sagacious pride.

"Ah, my good Doctor!" he roared now. "You should have seen it all. One fellow clipped across the temple and another stuck like a pig through the neck! Me—I could not have been better in my days of the cuirassiers!"

He was flourishing at us the fragments of his wondrous sword. I saw then the spattered blood of the deck, the coaming, and the littered ropes, for the day was here. He gathered the bits of steel in his hand and waved them again. "And now, my friends, have you breakfast anywhere about? I could sit at it with appreciation. As you surprise me with these attentions, I may expect your hospitality, may I not?"

"The surprise," murmured Virgil, "is mutual."

"Doubtless," he came near our rail and then perceived Mary. Blinking his old fox eyes, he gathered his vast robe and bowed and then stood erect like a gorgeous, rotund totem pole in the sunrise. "I am honored—I am stolen, abducted—made away with by force—what an adventure to conclude with! I can relate further for my lady. I am forever turning up in situations which cause me to suspect that fortune, my good-grand-dame, is still winking her eye at the world and chucking: 'Ah, John Bernal! In he goes by the heels—deep in the jam pot. Up he comes and scraping the sweetest of the sweets on a bright penny—that is like him.'"

"What, may I ask," I put in on his bragadochio, "has happened?"

"Everything—everything!"

"Where," muttered Virgil, "is Laure—we came to her?"

"Yes?" The Baron looked at him cornerwise out of an eye. "Your soundlessly courts have decided against her—she has lost, and there is another disappointment for my marquis. But no matter—she still has me—Baron John—who always turns up at the crux of things."

"Where is she?" the boss retorted curtly.

The Baron tapped his bandages. "If you had but waited an hour, you might have seen her. Her tender heart could not abide my scratches. She must be taken ashore with Alessandro to find some doctor's stuff and bandages. Bah—me!" He slapped his wound. "What is that to me?"

"You were going away today—were you?"

"We awaited a wind, my friend. We were off to dumdum the world. The good God would see to that. He had come cockily aboard us, puffing like a porpoise, and bowed again to Mary. 'I heard of your arrival, mademoiselle—it is strange how news travels through our swamps—but it does. Not a move that I can make that I perceive, is why you are here.' And he grinned, closing one shifty eye. 'I am honored, mademoiselle.'"

"I was most happily received at your island," Mary answered. "And I have heard the most excellent things about you."

"I should imagine. The good doctor here, and he chuckled me in the ribs with his fat elbow. 'Trust it to him. My little marquis, she can tell you! Eh, the good doctor, he is not so slow. In her exquisite and happy patois she can relate'—he broke off and shook his head at me—'ah, but I will be discreet!'"

"I wanted to punch him; they all looked at me with new suspicion. If anything went wrong with the lamentable affairs of Ciel or Mary or Virgil Williams, they seemed to imagine I was at the bottom of it. It is always the misfortune of the man who keeps his mouth shut and refuses mauldin advice to confidantes."

Williams had come over now and sat down deliberately across from the Baron John. I saw at once he was going to have it out with him; I was about to suggest something concerning laying the cloth for breakfast here instead of in the stuffy little cabin, when Virgil began, after his long measuring of his enemy.

"I want to know," he said, "just what you did with her?"

"I could answer better, my friend," retorted the baron, "were

60 DAISY DEAN

Adelaide Woods, known among patrons of the screen through her portrayal of character leads, has been engaged by Pallas Pictures to appear in important roles.

Miss Woods has appeared on the screen some three years, having been identified with Biograph for two years. After six months with Balboa she returned to Biograph, where she remained until the closing of the West Coast studio of that concern. Her greatest work on the screen was evidenced in "Faths that Crossed," in which she scored a personal triumph. Preceding her affliction with motion pictures Miss Woods played on the concert stage in so many successes for four years.

Scenic Beauties of Canada to be Filmed

The scenic beauties of Canada from Nova Scotia to British Columbia and from the Georgian Bay country to the Yukon will be filmed by several squads of Essanay camera men during the summer months.

Great preparations are being made for the Yukon pictures. Animal life in this great north country will be given as much attention as scenic studies and the camera staff has orders to get a series which will show how polar bears live. So thorough will be the canvass of this country for appropriate scenery and animal studies that the party is not expected to return until late in August or September.

The photographers will work westward to Vancouver through the Canadian Rockies and then take a boat for the north country, making a long snow trip inland and later working north by dog sledge to the habitat of the polar bear, the walrus and seal.

Christadore, an Italian-American sculptor, has recently completed the full-length figure of William Hart, the Ince-Triangle star, on which he has been working for three months. Mr. Hart is said to be very much pleased with the statue.

Mme. Petrova brought a parrot back with her from the Bermudas. It talks Spanish and she fears it swears, but fortunately, she says, she does not understand much Spanish.

I back at Isle Bonne instead of out here in mid-lake.

"Is she there?"

"As you have stolen the only means she had of getting away she undoubtedly is."

The Texan motioned again to his engine-man. "Put her about, Octave—run for the cheneviere. Only," he looked at the baron, hardening his eyes, "I have a notion to maul you on this shell reef. Just one thing prevents me—and that is to know what part you are playing in her affairs. And what you have in that lugger. The box of plunder and you were making away with it."

"If that was the last I thought of! You have done the making away, messieurs. My little marquis—we were to leave only at our pleasure—with dignity—and without waiting for your eviction. Ah, this last night, she was weeping as she went back through the moonlight to her island. I can see her, my friends—standing upright in the skiff as Alessandro pulled the oars—saying farewell, for she would not return again."

Virgil was looking at the blue wall of cypress over the rags of the mist lifting from the lake. Far beyond Isle Bonne a tremor of smoke went to the sky and spread slowly. There his machine was grinding on at the man's size job, and he was here listening to all this chatter from the fustian knight.

"She would never have left," returned Virgil slowly, "if it hadn't been for you. We'd have compromised this case five years ago, if it hadn't been for all the foolishness you put in her head. You kept her in a dream, and neve' could she see us right."

"I have made her little world bright with fancies. I have made her feel and see—yes, dream—if you will—what would have been forever beyond her. Ah, what she is, I made of her! I am the fool, then, my friend, I am Baron John of the Fool's Island, and I have built a soul while you were digging a ditch."

The boss sighed patiently. "Well, nemo," I expatiates the's other knights than you in the world. I reckon the's other fighters. And that stuff in the—'the' plunder from the deep swamp—whatever it is, it is not yours. It was hers by all rights, if you are tellin' truth of it. But now it's ours by a better right. You understand it's part of Isle Bonne, my friend?"

The old knight shrugged. "You are entirely welcome. In the hold of my man's boat is a ship's chest—

Adelaide Woods.

As Mrs. Cleave in "The American Beauty," a drama starring Myrtle Stedman, she will make her initial appearance on the Paramount program the last of this month. In this character she is given a particularly difficult part.

Stuart Holmes, the movie villain, says, "It has always been a mystery to me why canoe manufacturers don't put handrails on the bottoms of canoes so there will be something to hang on to when the canoe capsizes."

VERSE and REVERSE

The Bargain Day Girl

She goes into the dry goods store and wanders 'round two hours or more.

And looks at all the signs; She handles all the latest styles of silk and satins stacked in piles

In long and varied lines. She prices everything in sight and drives the clerks to frenzy quite.

When they can't make a sale. She misses not a counter there, but visits each to stand and stare.

And bite her finger nails. They think that she is going to buy the whole store out and wonder why

She doesn't make a start. You see, she really looks as though she has a whole carload of dough

With which she wants to part. And when they ask her, "How much, please?" in tones which show they're ill at ease,

She merely shakes her head; And when she leaves it's safe to bet she's bought just what she came to get:

A spool of cotton thread.

exactly as we found it." He slipped a lump of sugar into his coffee and stirred it, tasted with relish. "Entirely yours, my friend—I have no more use for it than the carcass of a man from which the soul is vanished."

I could not make him out. That gross bundle of a man with the face of a Caesar. In a fashion he seemed stunned, and airily concealing it, I attributed this to his sore wounds which he would make very light of.

Age Not Always a Remedy for Squint.

It is a popular superstition that a child will grow out of a squint. This is true in some cases—those of the temporary squint of infants, for instance, but even then, according to the British Journal of Children's Diseases, it should be a warning that the brain's control over the eyes is weak and that when the child goes to school or has a serious illness the squint may become permanent. Even if the eye be straightened it will have lost its power of vision.

It's Rented.

In a particularly desolate region of the country, two travelers came on a tumble-down shack in the midst of fifth and barrenness. They were discussing the improbability of human beings living there and did not see a forlorn little boy sitting in the edge of the weeds. He arose with a proud flush on his face. "Ye needn't make fun of it. Tain't ourn. It's test rented!"

FOR THE SUMMER BRIDE'S TROUSSEAU.

While the wedding gown yields nothing in importance to other frocks in the summer bride's trousseau, the tailor in which she is sure to travel to the country and seashore demands much attention. A rather mannish note is dictated in the suit to the left, fashioned from striped mohair and trimmed with white broadcloth. There is a big soft collar of self-material in addition to the broadcloth collar cut in one with the revers. In medium size the suit requires 5 yards 54-inch material, with 1 yard of cloth.

No less interesting is the afternoon frock of taffeta in Chinese blue, with its odd design. The skirt is draped at the sides, while the bodice is fitted over an underbust of chiffon, with short sleeves and a round collar. Five yards 36-inch taffeta and 2 yards 40-inch chiffon are needed for this frock.

First Model: Pictorial Review Jacket No. 6804. Sizes, 34 to 44 inches bust. Price, 15 cents. Skirt No. 6622. Sizes, 22 to 32 inches waist. Price, 15 cents.

Second Model: Waist No. 6331. Sizes, 32 to 42 inches bust. Price, 15 cents. Skirt No. 6655. Sizes, 22 to 32 inches waist. Price, 15 cents.

O. Needham of Melrose, who are also attending the dry convention, were special guests at the meeting. An unusually large attendance was present.

The bride elect's table was especially lovely, being centered by a basket of pink and white snap dragons and ferns, the handle tied with a bow of pink tulle. Dainty refreshments consisting of salad, rolls, coffee, ice cream and cake were served by Miss Kelly, assisted by Mrs. P. J. Kelly and Mrs. E. O. Abrahamson of Houston, Minn.

The guests listened with pleasure to several delightful piano numbers by Miss Irene Hotzert and also several readings by Mrs. George Hauser. Miss Lamb was the recipient of many beautiful and useful gifts.

Leads to Altar

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 22.—The wedding of Miss Ruth Tinglepaugh and Richard Rutherford, which is to take place here tomorrow at the home of the bride's parents, will mark the culmination of a romance that had its beginning at the University of Nebraska, where both the prospective bride and bridegroom were prominent in student athletic circles. Rutherford was one of the greatest athletes ever developed at the Nebraska university, starring in basket ball and wrestling and rounding out three years on the Husker foot ball team without ever having met defeat. Miss Tinglepaugh, during the two years she attended the university, held the women's tennis championship. When her parents left Lincoln to make their home in Los Angeles, Rutherford secured a place with the life-saving crew at Long Beach during vacation last summer and figured in a number of thrilling rescues. After their wedding trip the couple will return to Lincoln, where Rutherford has been elected assistant coach at the university.

BOSTON, Mass.—Miss Frances R. Burnham, treasurer of the Workingmen's Co-operative Bank of Boston has the distinction of being the only bank treasurer of her sex in the state. Two months ago, the Massachusetts legislature passed an act making it possible for women to hold such a position. Immediately, the treasurer of the Workingmen's bank recommended a change in the by-laws so that an assistant treasurer might be employed, and Miss Burnham was unanimously elected. She began at the bottom of clerical work. "Men used to be jealous of women in business and once hesitated to advance them," says Miss Burnham. "But that is passing. Am I not myself an example? Our directors approve of women."

This rubbed into the scalp creates a thick lather, soothing and cooling in its action, as well as beneficial to scalp and hair. After rinsing the scalp is fresh and clean, while the hair dries quickly and evenly, developing a bright luster and a very soft fluffiness that makes it seem very heavy.

PROOF IS AWAITED BEFORE SETTING CHANGE IN POLICY

BY ROBERT J. BENDER
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
WASHINGTON, June 22.—Until it is definitely established that there is an organized effort by Carranza troops to attack or harass American forces in northern Mexico, no change in President Wilson's policy toward Mexico is likely, callers learned today.
The president is waiting complete details on the fight between Carranza and American soldiers at Carrizal before planning his course.
The president indicated very clearly that if a change in policy occurs it will result on the initiative of the Mexicans.
If a conflict is found necessary as a last resort, the president emphatically declared, it would simply be a vigorous effort to re-establish order and peace in the trouble-ridden country and then return it to its people, established on a sound foundation.

CONSULAR REFORM URGENT NEED OF THE UNITED STATES

Many of Secondary Positions in Our Foreign Service Not Even Filled by U. S. Citizens

SALARIES OF POSTS TOO LOW
In Certain Places the Money Paid is Not Sufficient to Cover Living Expenses

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN
WASHINGTON, June 22.—With our foreign relations a leading political issue, and the American people aroused to a consciousness of their place as a world power, our diplomatic and consular service is being subjected to a close scrutiny and overhauling by both houses of congress.

To Reform Consular Service
The condition of the consular service, especially, is the subject of a great deal of discussion in both the house and the senate, and it is extremely probable that reforms will be enacted into the next diplomatic and consular appropriation bill which will make our consular service not only a more efficient instrument for the promotion of American business in foreign countries, but a far more attractive profession to the American citizen who wants to serve his country.
The consular service is the real pioneer of foreign trade—the machinery by which American business finds its way in other lands. The diplomats—ministers, ambassadors and their assistants—are the personal representatives of the government in its political dealings with foreign countries. They are appointed by the president, and act as his personal representatives in the exchange of messages and the negotiation of agreements. In case of war, or any other international disturbance, their positions may be of the greatest importance; but they have nothing to do with commerce. It is the consular service that discovers new markets for American goods, and does all in its power to help our business men reach them. It is the consul who helps you out when you lose your letter of credit, are arrested, or otherwise get into trouble in a foreign country. The duties of consuls make a list about a foot long, and upon the success and thoroughness with which he attends to them depends the welfare of all American interests abroad, from a school teacher on a pleasure trip to a five million dollar contract.

Not Even Citizens
Now, with "Americanism" the slogan of all political parties, it has been suddenly brought to the attention of congress that a large percentage of this most important branch of the national service is not American at all. This is the way of it: The principal grades in the consular service are consul-general, consul, vice-consul and consular agent. The first two of these classes are fairly well-paid and are filled by American citizens who are especially qualified for their positions. The remaining two are very poorly paid—partly in fees—and their incumbents in a large number of cases are natives of the countries where they are located. Furthermore, owing to the small amount of money which they receive, the consular agents are allowed to engage in the trade. In a word, the commercial representative of the United States in a South American town may be, and often is, a native merchant instead of an American representative of the state department.

According to figures laid before the house by Representative John J. Rogers, of Massachusetts, out of 243 American vice-consuls, 84 are foreigners, and out of 589 consular agents, 97 are foreigners. Needless to say, this is an undesirable state of affairs at any time, and might become especially so in time of war.
Same With All
This condition is not confined to our consular service. Many nations have poorly paid positions in the lower grades of their representation abroad which come to be filled by foreigners because there is no specific prohibition against so filling them, and because the remuneration is not large enough to induce men to go away from home to fill the places. It was recently stated before the British Chamber of Commerce, for example, that during the keen competition between England and Germany before the war, forty-four British consular positions were filled with Germans. Now that the two nations are at war, this condition appears startling, and will doubtless be remedied.

Holland has a very imperfect service abroad. She has 730 representatives in foreign countries, and on-keen competition for world trade which is sure to be taken up with redoubled energy after the war.

To Provide Citizens
The house of representatives has already taken the first steps toward the "Americanization" of our consular service by inserting in the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill a proviso that none of the money appropriated for the salaries of the service shall be paid to representatives who are not Americans, unless this is necessary as a temporary expedient, before the change can be made. The state department asked for an additional $25,000 so that it might send out professional vice-consuls, on salary, and so abolish the fee system. This, however, has not so far been included in the bill.

The investigations of the congressmen into the compensation of the consular service shows a most interesting state of affairs which seems to call for immediate action. They find that since the breaking out of war the cost of living has risen so greatly in Europe that the salaries of many consular officers are no longer adequate. One consular assistant has resigned because he could not live upon his salary; another reports his pay unequal to the most necessary expenses; and many, who have private incomes, are being compelled to draw upon them heavily. Considering the importance of their duties all of these officers receive surprisingly low salaries—from $2,000 to $3,500 a year.

Not Enough
This amount was considered adequate in many European countries before the war broke out; but it was never adequate in many other countries, according to the congressional report. In South America, for example, where consular assistants are especially needed, it has been impossible to use them because the salaries paid were not sufficient to cover their living expenses. The same is true in parts of Africa.

This matter of adjusting the consul's pay to the cost of living at his post seems to be the most important of all. For one thing, under the present conditions a promotion often means loss to the officer instead of gain. He may be serving in some unimportant European city, where living is cheap, and receive a transfer to a large and commercially important place in South America. The few hundred dollars of increase in salary is more than swallowed up by the increase in his expense, and in addition, the officer often finds his usefulness limited by the small size of his income. In order to be of the most service to American business he must belong to the leading clubs and commercial organizations, and must go into society enough to keep in touch with the principal business men of his post. Instead of this many a consul has found himself compelled to lead a very modest and retiring existence.

Need More Expenses
In the matter of transfer from one post to another, the consular officer encounters another loss. The government pays him five cents a mile for the distance he has to go. This seldom suffices to cover the expenses of one man traveling alone, and in the case of a married officer, who must transfer a family and household effects, it means an outlay that may put him considerably in debt. For example, an officer who was transferred from Washington to Hongkong paid out $820 in traveling expenses for himself and his wife. Of this, the government reimbursed only $587.80.

The house bill proposes to remedy these difficulties by providing a fund to be used by the president for the adjustment of consuls' salaries to their expenses, and are for the payment of actual traveling expenses.

On the whole, the consular ser-

GREAT GATHERING IN RIVER PARK CITY PARKWELL

when the band, its one member in khaki conspicuous among the blue uniforms, led the soldiers through the park from the Main street entrance. A ripple of applause and a wave of cheering marked the passage of the troops through the crowd, while hundreds stood on benches or clambered upon the running boards of the automobiles parked on the drives to get a glimpse of the gray-brown campaign hats and sturdy shoulders beneath.

The soldiers weren't at liberty, however, and although the band marched to the stand and struck into its concert at once, the officers wheeled the men about and in column of fours led them back to the armories, where they were dismissed. With their mothers, wives and sweethearts on their arms, back the soldiers came to the park, where they mingled with and lent the gathering the military note which accentuated its purpose.

Father Murphy Presides
The band opened up with "The Star Spangled Banner," and the great concourse of people rose and uncovered through the stirring strains. Then came a swinging overture, and as the applause which greeted it died away Rev. Ambrose Murphy, pastor of St. James church, stepped to the rail of the stand.

"Fellow citizens," he began, "We are assembled here this evening to bid God-speed to our boys who are going to the front for our country, possibly to war. It is not their war alone. It is our war. We are to assure them that there is now only one kind of blood in this country, that there is only one flag. We are here to assure them that there is a united people behind them."

Applause interrupted the clergyman. When it fell away he resumed: "There will be no copperheads in this war. There will be no firing from the rear. We'll be with the men heart and soul, for this will not be a war of conquest, but to bring freedom and order to a disturbed people. Every heart beats in sympathy with our soldiers, and if there be one which does not, it has no right to the protection of the flag."

Father Murphy introduced Mayor A. A. Bentley. The mayor, in a ringing address, reiterated the message of La Crosse to the departing soldiers: "Don't worry about the folks at home."

The City's Obligation
"It is not alone our privilege," declared the city executive. "It is our unavoidable duty, it is a fixed obligation upon us, to guarantee to the families and relatives of every soldier who has gone to the front in our behalf, in the behalf of our country, to defend the national ideals of our republic, to see to it that each individual left behind dependent upon the income of the departed soldier, be given—not in charity, but as an obligation we owe—every dollar that any dependent will be deprived of by reason of the absence of any soldier."

"We pledge you tonight, my brave comrades, that so long as a dollar is in circulation in La Crosse, those who are left behind will be cared for the same as our own and nearest kin."

An enthusiastic wave of applause which followed the mayor's speech showed the hearty interest in which the audience found itself with his pledge on behalf of the city.

A Murmur
There was a characteristic exchange between Father Murphy and Judge Cameron L. Baldwin when the steamboat Sidney's calliope interrupted the judge shortly after he began to speak. The steam piano was quickly silenced by members of the indignant throng who were anxious to listen to the speaking, and as it stopped abruptly, Judge Baldwin turned to the presiding clergyman.

"You see," he said, "how I am received. The steamboat crew didn't play for you, Father Murphy."

The crowd rocked as the quick-witted pastor flashed back: "No, judge, they listened to me."

Judge Baldwin spoke passionately for militant support of the right. War, he said, is not always wrong. When it is a war in just cause, he declared, it is true Christianity, and the highest expression of a nation's ideal.

The Cause of Humanity
Attorney James Thompson followed Judge Baldwin. He spoke with emotion and conviction which found response in repeated interruptions of applause.

"These men are going to the front, not for themselves," he declared, "but for you and me. They have given up their homes, their work—everything that is most dear to men—to defend those human rights for which this nation pre-eminent stands. They are entitled to the blessings of every man, woman and child in La Crosse, and the blessings of a hundred million people in this great country of ours. They go forward as the apostles and defenders of a country which history declares to be the most devotedly unselfish in the cause of human rights."

"America has never gone to war for less. In the revolutionary war for which we gained our freedom, in that great Civil war which many of you here tonight remember and took

SECOND LUNCHEON OF SERIES HELD AT NOON TODAY

The second of a series of three luncheons in the interest of the Chamber of Commerce movement was held this noon at the Stoddard hotel. George W. Burton, chairman of the meeting, had as his guests men who have spent most of their lives in La Crosse. The first luncheon was held on Wednesday. At that time the newcomers amongst the business men were the guests of D. W. MacWillie. By newcomers were included persons who have come here within the last twenty years.

Another Tomorrow
Tomorrow the final luncheon will be given by Argyle Scott and this to the members of the second generation, the sons of men who have been identified with the business life of La Crosse since an early day. Although it was the original intention of the hosts to have included in their lists all the business men of the city, it was found that the numbers would be too large and the lists were greatly reduced.

The purpose of the meetings is to explain the plans for the Chamber of Commerce. The explanations are being made by members of the campaign committee and by D. H. McFarland of New York who has had much experience with organization work of this kind. The complex working machinery of the chamber and its bureaus was explained by means of an elaborate chart.

Mr. McFarland stated that the strongest features of similar organizations all over the country has been adopted for the La Crosse body.

Choose Your Own Field
"The bureau type of organization is being widely adopted," said the speaker, "because it places the organization on a better business basis and places each member in a field of work which appeals strongest to him. There will be a membership campaign here in the near future, and at the close of the campaign every member will be asked to designate the bureaus in which he wished to enroll."

C. B. STEVENS CALLED BY DEATH

C. B. Stevens, 927 West avenue south, well known La Crosse optician, died last night at the Lutheran hospital, after an illness extending over several months. He had been in delicate health for several months.

Charles Burt Stevens was born in Holyoke, Mass., Sept. 28, 1847. He came to La Crosse in 1898, opening an office at 510 Main street, a few years later removing to the State Bank building, which offices he occupied up to the time of his death.

Surviving him are five children, Mrs. A. J. Vanstrum, Berkeley, Cal.; R. B. Stevens and Miss Mame Stevens, Minneapolis; and A. B. Stevens and Mrs. Carl Kurtenacker, La Crosse. Mrs. Stevens died nine months ago.

Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home by Rev. C. C. Rowlinson. The body will be taken to Minneapolis for burial in Lakewood cemetery.

part in, in our struggle for Cuba, we did not fight for conquest, we did not fight for some great military leader's fame. We fought, as we will fight now if need be, for humanity.

"We have no enmity to Mexico. We have nothing but sympathy for that bleeding country. The call comes to us to bring them the blessings of peace and order, to deliver them from rapacious and bloodthirsty outlaws who are robbing and slaying and slaughtering our countrymen. These boys go to support these people, and we are here tonight to tell them that we are with them. In spirit and loyalty we are behind them, and if need be there are more of us who will go to join them in the struggle."

"So we wish them God-speed, confident that they go to uphold our country's great mission, to defend those principles for which the United States now stands as it has always stood, the principles of human rights. They are to fight the battle of humanity."

Veteran Well Received
While Mr. Thompson was speaking, Father Murphy had caught sight of Judge Cronin in the crowd, and persuaded him to the platform. A cheer went up as the crowd caught sight of the familiar figure of the veteran, and his talk was interrupted by the crowd's enthusiasm several times.

"This may be war," said Judge Cronin, "or it may not be. The boys may come back to us in a short time, or they may be gone for good. But I'm glad the scare came. It's put us on our mettle. We need a lesson like this now and then, to keep us from becoming lazy. We are inclined to forget our country, and to forget what we owe to it."

"This afternoon I was in the police station, and a man came in to ask the police to help him find his boy who wanted to enlist."

LAUGH WITH CHOKE BEHIND IT NOTE OF ELKS' DINNER

With long tables stretching down its length, at which sat more than 200 stalwart figures in olive drab service uniforms, Elks hall was converted from a ball-room to a mess-hall yesterday evening. It was the "Good Luck Dinner" given by B. P. O. E. 300 for the militia boys—a rousing celebration lighted by a great spirit of good will and patriotism. The solemn side of the farewell which the occasion celebrated was carefully concealed beneath an avalanche of wit and music. Songs and cheers for Uncle Sam and the Badger state rang through the clouds of fragrant Havana smoke, jokes snapped back and forth, and applause flickered along the tables as the speakers made clever hits. But there was a choke behind the laughter, for over the head of the speaker's table streamed and crackled Old Glory for whom the boys were leaving.

Flags for Troops
Silk flags were given to both companies M and B and the hospital corps as the concluding number of the program. The presentation was made by Exalted Ruler John Callaway on behalf of the lodge, to Captain Herman Rupp of Company B, Major D. S. McArthur of the sanitary troops, and Lieutenant George Hale, for Company M. Captain Fowler had sent his regrets, dedicating his last evening at home to his family.

Marching in quick step to music from an orchestra in the balcony, the troops halted before the lodge building, and filed by two into the building. They were greeted by an American flag waving briskly on the rostrum. National colors were profuse, counterparts of the flag from the Pine Tree banner of 1776 to the forty-eight star flag of the present day being arranged on the wall over the table, seating Third Regiment Chaplain George R. Longbrake, company commanders and the speakers of the evening.

Mrs. Joseph Bartl sang "America," while the assemblage rose.

Hurtgen Presides
Patriotism, mixed with a wholesome amount of good cheer, characterized the dinner. Toastmaster W. F. Hurtgen and his co-workers converted the function into a meeting of well wishes for the departing. Hurtgen declared he "envied them on the vacation they were to have." The soldiers took the shafts as they were meant and Billy was time and again cheered into silence.

HATTON PROBABLE
CHOICE AT MEET
MADISON, Wis., June 22.—(Special.)—The nomination of S. W. H. Hatton of New London as compromise candidate for governor was the strong probability at the opening of the progressive republican convention here today. Senator Otto Boss, hard of La Crosse, at present an avowed candidate, has expressed his willingness to abide by the decision of the convention and the action of the body it is believed would automatically eliminate McGovern.

TENTH CAVALRY IS ATTACKED BY AMBUSHED GUNS

ordered machine guns secreted on the roofs of houses and hid his men behind adobe walls. A small company of Mexicans was sent to the western part of the town to wave a flag of truce. The unsuspecting American cavalrymen rode into the ambush. When the Mexicans opened fire from their machine guns, the negro troops fought back like fiends. General Gomez was killed, his body literally riddled with American bullets.

The Americans charged the unseen Mexicans in an effort to recapture several of their number and inflicted heavy casualties, the unofficial reports stated. They were finally forced to retire in face of vastly superior Mexican forces.

Greatly Outnumbered
The American column was reported to number 500, while Gomez is believed to have had several thousand men under his command.

The fighting continued two hours, the Carranzistas being meanwhile reinforced from the large Carranzista forces in Villa Ahumada.

Messages received here early today by mining companies said the Mexican losses were double those sustained by the American forces.

It was reported that General Pershing has seized the Mexican towns of Nuevo Casas Grandes and Casas Grandes on account of Anti-American demonstrations there. If General Pershing has immediately sent reinforcements to the Tenth cavalry, another battle in the vicinity of Villa Ahumada is imminent in view of official reports.

According to Gonzales, the Carranzistas held Carrizal today, and the Americans are camped in the nearby foothills. The Americans captured were going to Chihuahua City under heavy guard, according to General Gonzales. A train load of Mexican wounded also were taken to the hospitals in the state capital.

It is thought the de facto government intends evacuating practically all border towns and mobilizing at interior points now being fortified to resist American forces.

Bandits Back Out
It is reported Carranzista agents visited bandit camps south of Namiquipa for the purpose of securing their co-operation in fighting the United States troops. The bandits are said to have refused, preferring to work alone.

Apparently it is easier for a man to recite the Koran in Hindu than to say "I love you" in English.

Foreign Markets

New York Stocks

MRS SPEARS BURIED

Funeral services for the late Mrs. Sarah Spears were held at half-past one Tuesday afternoon at the Methodist church in Stoddard, with the Rev. Boyington officiating. A large gathering of friends and relatives were present.

The trouble started following the killing of a Mexican by an American, it was reported. The posse was immediately dispatched in three large automobiles.

The fellow who marries for money often looks as though he had earned it, but had some difficulty in collecting.

FIVE SETS OF BILLIARD BALLS STOLEN AT CLUB

Five sets of billiard balls were stolen from the pool room in the La Crosse club some time between Tuesday night when the balls were last in use and yesterday afternoon, when the loss was discovered. It is thought that the thief made his haul about Wednesday noon, when the room was empty and every opportunity given for such an act. Inasmuch as a set of billiard balls is valued at about forty dollars, the loss will amount to about two hundred dollars. The robbery has been reported to the police, but no clues are obtainable. This is about the first robbery of its kind in the city.

little switch-engine on the side-track nearly blew out a cylinder-head with a piercing whistle that kept up as long as the train was in sight. The train ran slowly through the towns, but there were no stops.

As soon as Camp Douglas was reached, the troops were detained and marched in column of fours down the road to the rifle range. The La Crosse companies are encamped on the east side of the long range, in the new part of the grounds.

The supply company had tents on the ground, and the soldiers were put to work erecting them at once. That job was finished in an hour. In the meantime the cook-tents had not been

SOLDIERS SEND THANKS
Captain Herman Rupp of Company B today asked THE TRIBUNE to convey to the city of La Crosse, the Elks' club, the north side band and other agencies which took part in the farewell observances, the gratitude and appreciation of the militia-men.

There were two minor accidents on the journey, one of which has made Harry Raper the target of all the jibes his friends can think up. Poor Harry, who is a clerk in the Continental Clothing store when he is not totting a rifle, caught the seat of his nice new olive drab pants on the car step while the company was unloading.

It was dreadful. Harry had to hold 'em together all the way to camp.

Sergeant W. H. Hanson of the hospital corps gave Lieutenant Gray his first chance at first-aid on the trip when he got a cinder in his eye. It was expertly removed.

Garfield McEdward, a former correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, now secretary to the vice president of the Milwaukee railroad, was in charge of the train. He was sent to La Crosse from Chicago especially to take charge of the special.

The supply companies were first on the ground yesterday. Superior's company of the Third Regiment being the earliest one to appear. The troop trains came pouring into Camp Douglas one after the other without a hitch during the morning, and the road to the camp was filled with marching men. The mobilization plans worked without a falter.

These in Camp
At noon today the companies in camp included:
Third regiment, Company A of Neillsville, B and M of La Crosse, the hospital corps, the supply company, F and D of Portage, the hand and headquarters company of Viroqua, L and K of Tomah and Sparta.

Second, F, D and K, Oshkosh, supply company, Green Bay.
First, C, E, F, D, K and supply company, of Milwaukee.

Neillsville's contingent has a squad of six Haugen brothers. They are big, strapping fellows, all orphans, except for their little dog, Bill. Bill came along when the family went to camp, and has been adopted as Company A's mascot.

The last train to arrive was the largest of the day, carrying seventeen coaches filled with companies B, E, F and K of the First regiment from Milwaukee. They arrived at 1:15. Troops were arriving at the camp for about four hours continuously. Major Williams of a Milwaukee company told THE TRIBUNE that the efficiency of the men and officers in getting the various companies located was marvelous.

General King of Milwaukee and Adjutant General Holway arrived at Camp Douglas this afternoon.

The little Wisconsin town which is experiencing some of the highest excitement it has seen for years is keyed up to the highest pitch. Five moving picture men representing the biggest houses in the country are on the job clicking off the events of interest at the camp. Newspaper men are on hand from Milwaukee, Minneapolis and La Crosse. Eight men are representing the papers of Minneapolis and the Cream City.

Here is the order in which the Wisconsin companies arrived at the camp:

corner of Fourth street and started down State street there was a general craning of necks, and the crowd thrilled at the sight of the steady brown column and the lines of slanting rifles. The north side band and Company M came first, led by Captain Fowler and Lieutenant George Hale. Right behind them came Andre's band, with Captain Rupp leading his well-drilled Company B. Bringing up the rear came the hospital corps, gray-haired Major McArthur, senior officer of the local contingent, pacing out in front with drawn sword and head flung back.

The second band was playing "Marching Through Georgia," and a flutter of waving handkerchiefs and applause broke out as the troops swung by to the historic measure.

Veterans Salute Troops

The men on the speaker's stand rose as the troops reached the cleared space before them. The guard of honor of civil war veterans lifted their hats from their white heads, and the color-bearer of the post leaned far out over the rail to wave the big, gold-fringed flag at the younger generation of soldiers. There was a burst of cheers, and a chorus of hails from the crowd as it recognized familiar faces in the khaki ranks. But the troops kept their eyes straight ahead soldier-wise, and deployed in column of fours as the officers barked brisk commands.

They drew up to attention before the stand, and the band music dropped away. A hush fell on the crowd as Mr. Hood rose to his feet, his stooped and massive shoulders squaring back to the old militant carriage of the days when he, too, stood at attention to hear a city's parting blessing.

His talk was short. Captain Fowler and Captain Rupp had come upon the stand, and informed the committee that the time was short. The train was to leave at 7:30, and the officers would not permit any delay. In fact, so short was the time that Chaplain George R. Longbrake's response on behalf of the troops was omitted entirely. The Third regiment chaplain stepped forward as Mr. Hood finished, but the lieutenants were already wheeling their columns onto the platform where the troop-train stood waiting.

No Fulsome Oratory

There was no fulsome oratory or spread-eagling about Mr. Hood's talk. It was the heart-to-heart advice of an old soldier to young ones, and the reiteration of the city's earnest blessing, loyalty and best wishes.

"Soldiers and friends," said the veteran, "In behalf of 30,000 people I am here to say the formal good-bye. You men have stood the acid test of citizenship. You have placed your lives upon the altar of your country. You are leaving on a mission of great danger. You are going into Mexico, or at least to the border, and this morning's news that forty American soldiers have been treacherously slain from ambush makes it more than probable that you are going to war."

"You will meet many dangers. The enemy armed with a gun is only one of the dangers that besets a soldier. He is surrounded by foes. Whether it be war or not, your duty calls you to a desolate land. You will suffer from thirst, possibly hunger. These are the lot of a soldier. This government has made provision for your safety such as no soldier has ever had before. But your duty demands self-restraint. The best help a soldier has is his self-control. As an old soldier, I charge you to maintain that self-restraint."

"We do not want war with Mexico. But a large percentage of her unfortunate people are marauders and bandits. They have crossed our boundary and slain our citizens. We have no sympathy with those who have spent sums to wrest Mexico's birthright from her people, but the humblest American ranchman with his few acres on the border is entitled to his privilege of life. In the words of a great American, 'every American citizen is entitled to protection in his rights, if it takes every other American citizen in order to do it.'"

"We hope your stay may be brief. But it may be long, and in behalf of these 30,000 people I say 'good-bye.' We are all stirred by that same spirit of elemental patriotism, and in that spirit I charge you to remember that the eyes of this state and nation are upon you, our hopes and wishes are with you. Remember the land that bore you. Remember us who adore you."

Din Breaks Loose

The last words of Mr. Hood were almost inaudible a few feet from the stand, for every steam whistle in the city was shrieking its farewell. The din was deafening. It was added to by the clang of hundreds of bells.

The troops, at the word of command, wheeled and started down the platform between the lane of wildly excited people. All restraint was gone, and hundreds wept openly as they snatched at the passing lines of uniformed men for a farewell handshake. The men tramped down the platform, and broke ranks as they reached the cars. Wives, friends, mothers, sweethearts crowded about them. The soldiers themselves were affected, and more than one frankly dashed tears from his eyes.

"Good-bye, God bless you," was the burden of what was said. There was a last hasty embrace, a grip of the hand, and then the men crowded into the cars. Half a dozen faces appeared at each window, and with flags and handkerchiefs waving from the crowd and from the train, it slowly pulled out for the camp—and the border.

City Early Astir

La Crosse was early astir this morning. The streets were filled with people at 6 o'clock, and there were crowds about each armory. Aged women stood talking with their sons, wrinkling back the tears which would start. Young girls clung convulsively to the arms of their sweethearts, and gray-haired fathers stood

BURTON ELECTED RED CROSS HEAD SOON WORK STARTS

The second step in the organization of the local Red Cross was consummated yesterday afternoon with the election of the officers and the board of directors. This followed the preliminary work, which was accomplished about six weeks ago. The third step will be to secure the charter and begin the organization's work of aiding the soldiers and their families.

George W. Burton was elected chairman of the La Crosse chapter at yesterday's gathering, which was attended largely by women. Mrs. F. Easton acted as temporary chairman. The other officers are: Andrew Lees, vice chairman; John G. Holley, treasurer; C. S. Van Auker, secretary. The president and secretary are ex-officio members of the executive committee which will be appointed later.

One of the first steps necessary will be to secure funds for which a large committee is to be appointed. Each organization in the city, together with all other available sources will be solicited to do its share. Once started, it is expected that the funds will swell rapidly, and there is no doubt that the work here will not be hampered for lack of assistance.

Two-part Work

The local work will be divided into two parts, one of which will be providing for the soldiers at Camp Douglas or the front, and the other providing for those who remain at home. Although provision will be made for forwarding clothing and supplies to the soldiers, little as yet is known of the method of this work. Mrs. Easton, speaking of the work this morning, was uncertain whether supplies would have to be sent to the national body first or could be sent directly to the men at camp.

The other phase of the Red Cross work, that of providing for the needy wives and children left behind, has been placed in the hands of a committee of which D. W. MacWillie is chairman. This committee was not appointed as a part of the Red Cross organization but it is expected that the

CUBS REPLACED IN RACE BY REDS WHO WIN DOUBLE BILL

CHICAGO, June 22.—Cincinnati twice defeated Chicago on Wednesday and ousted the Cubs from fifth place.

Toney's good pitching in pinches and his own two bagger, which scored two runs, were factors in Cincinnati's 4 to 3 victory in the first game. A feature was Griffith's throwing Archer out at first on a hit to right field.

Lavender's wildness, Chicago errors, and Moseley's clever slab work gave the Reds the second game, 3 to 2. The scores:

Cincinnati . . . 030001000—4 7 0
Chicago . . . 010000020—3 5 2

COBB PLAYS GREAT GAME AND TIGERS TIE FOR THE LEAD

DETROIT, Mich., June 22.—Detroit went into a tie for first place by defeating Cleveland, 3 to 0 on Wednesday. As was the case on Tuesday, the game was marked by great fielding and pitching. Coveleskie held the visitors to three scattered hits and only two men reached second base on him.

Detroit won the game in the sixth inning. Cobb tripled and scored when Chapman threw Speaker's relay into the Tiger dugout. Veach scored in the same inning on his single, Heilmann's hit and Burns' out.

Cobb also scored the Tigers' run in the eighth inning. He doubled to rightfield belachrs and scored on two successive putouts at first. The score:

R. H. E.
Cleveland . . . 000000000—0 3 2
Detroit . . . 00000201x—3 8 1
Batteries—Bagby, McHole and O'Neill; Coveleskie and Staange.

George Foster yesterday pitched a no-hit, no-run game for the Red Sox against the Yankees. The score:

Batteries—Scott, Russell and Schalk; Kooz and Hartley.

WATCHING THE SCOREBOARD

Yesterday's Hero
George Foster of the Red Sox, who pitched a no-hit, no-run game against the Yanks.

The first Yank to reach first was Nunamaker. He got to the initial sack in the seventh on a walk.

The Chicago clubs were walloped all around. The Red Legs administered a double beating to the Cubs at Chicago, while the White Sox were shown how it feels to be licked twice in one day by the Browns at St. Louis.

The double defeat dropped the Cubs to sixth place.

The Braves beat out the Giants in the tenth when Evers scored on a sacrifice fly.

Matty was touched for four hits and the winning tally in three innings.

Coveleskie's twirling and Cobb's hitting were too big a combination for the Indians. Three scattered hits was the best Cleveland could do with Coveleskie's delivery.

A double and triple were Cobb's contribution. He scored both times.

He Built Great Racer To Be At M.V.P.B.A. Meet

Chris C. Smith of Algonac, Mich., builder of "Miss Minneapolis," the $10,000 racing boat built especially for the St. Paul regatta of the Mississippi Valley Power Boat association, July 4, 5 and 6, is without doubt the foremost builder of racing hydroplanes in America.

He has held all of American speed records for the past five years and was defeated only once, when James A. Pugh's 40-foot, 1800 horse power "Disturber IV" took the world's record at over 61 miles an hour at Chicago last year.

Smith and Pugh will get together again at the big St. Paul regatta when "Miss Minneapolis" and "Disturber V," the newest Pugh racer, go over the starting line, in a battle for the American championship.

FIRELESS GAS RANGE BAKES, ROASTS, STEWS

The Chambers "Fireless" Gas Range is new to La Crosse, though the range has been manufactured for about nine years. A factory representative is demonstrating this week at the V. Tausche Hardware company's store. With this range you can bake bread, cakes and pies, and roast and stew meats and vegetables at full speed with the gas turned off. Not only is there a saving of fuel, but the necessity of constant watching is eliminated; food will not burn nor scorch. The demonstration is free and curiosity alone will draw many good cooks to the V. Tausche Hardware company's store this week.

THE JAPANESE GARDEN

BY LEONARD L. HESS

(Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

She had prayed as fervently as the boy's own family that he might recover, and, perhaps, during the crisis her voice had been raised in a fervor surpassing that of all the rest. So when the boy's sister informed her that he was, in fact, already out of danger, a smile of triumph flickered on her lips and she turned her eyes heavenward as if his recovery had been a special dispensation of Providence for her alone. The boy was twenty-two; she was thirty-eight.

Her slight figure pressed on its way through the crowds. Her brow, usually clear and serene under the hair streaked with gray, was now furrowed and under her large hat her eyes shone brightly. What gift should she send Larry Holden for his convalescence? He was fond of reading—but almost every one would send books. She pressed her way to a shop window flashing with novelties. A meerschaum pipe? No. Larry must not smoke after an attack of pneumonia. She shivered at the idea of tempting him with it. She peeped from window to window, perplexed by the search. At last her eye hit on a Japanese garden and she gave a gasp of delight as she came to a quick conclusion, which left logic quite prostrate behind her. She was very partial to Japanese gardens; so Larry must be partial to them, too! A sleek little Jap bowed her into green with the leaves of multitudinous small plants. She looked about her and then selected her garden. It was rather bare, not particularly Oriental, and she was not satisfied with it. Her thin hands flickered as she pointed from one object to another with which to embellish it and the little Jap, smiling placidly added a second dwarf tree, another bridge, the shiny yellow bulb of a sacred narcissus and a pagoda atop a pebbled hill. He worked with deft fingers, assuring her that the garden looked now for all the world like a bit of old Japan. She smiled, proud of having hit upon this present. Larry had always talked a great deal about the Orient. He had never been in the east and once she had laughed at his passion for it, telling him that he must be the reincarnation of a Hindu. And very seriously he had answered: "Yes, I shouldn't wonder!" She recollected this now, gazing at the garden. She gave Larry's name and address, said the Jap in a flutter of excitement, and, again congratulating herself on the felicity of the gift, hurried from the dim shop into the street, gay with the sunshine of spring.

She was the friend of Larry's oldest sister, and Larry himself was very fond of her. He was the only man who was fond of her, as she knew well enough. Larry was in her thoughts constantly. In beginning, she had felt toward him as toward a young brother, but it was not long before there came a subtle change, she forgetting that she was thirty-eight and he only twenty-two. At least, she no longer felt this difference between them.

It was a shock to find how thin his face looked on the white pillow. The face was as white as the pillow itself and the eyes in it were large. But the fever had gone out of them leaving them tranquil, while the boy was fighting his way back to health. His thick, golden hair, like a child's, formed a sort of halo around his head. There was but feeble strength in the hand with which he clasped Celia Darrow's own.

"Hello, Celia—awfully glad to see you!" He held her hand and gazed up at her. "Thanks awfully for that." He nodded toward a table at his side.

On the table stood the Japanese garden, with its dwarf trees and bridges and pagodas. Clear water sparkled among the pebbles and the sacred narcissus was putting forth a tender yellow-green shoot.

"You like it?" Her voice thrilled.

"Splendid! I've had it placed there you see—close, where I can always look at it. I've been looking at it ever since it came. How thoughtful you are, Celia!"

She turned quickly away. A breeze, tinged with the odor of fresh blossoms from the park, stirred through the window, rustling the leaves of a book open under Larry's hand.

"You've been reading? Shall I read to you now?"

"It's the 'Arabian Nights,'" He answered quickly. "I'm awfully fond of the 'Arabian Nights.' I'm fond of Conrad, too. Stories of the eastern seas, you know. And all that sort of thing. Remember what you said about the reincarnation of the Hindu?"

As she touched the book he went on:

"No thanks; don't read. Just talk to me. I'm always glad to have you with me."

She dropped her eyes and struggled with a button of her glove. Behind her Larry's sister moved about the room. Celia glanced at Larry who just then was staring at the ceiling. Her breath quickened. Larry's eyes roved to the Japanese garden. To herself, Celia Darrow repeated over and over his words. "I'm always glad to have you with me." They did not speak. It seemed to her that something within her forbade many words. Every time Larry looked toward her she smiled and when it was time to go she rose in a flutter, taking his hand, a blush spreading over her pale, oval face.

"Thanks again, Celia," he murmured. "Do come in tomorrow."

She dropped her hand and hurried out, saying to herself: "He loves me, he loves me!" His eyes followed her through the door and came to rest on the garden by his side.

She returned to him almost every day till he was well, and at every leaving-taking she said to herself, "He loves me!"

A month later she was reading at her open window. She was reading with her eyes alone. Her thoughts were with Larry Holden. Suddenly, as if the thoughts had summoned him to her by their longing, she heard Larry's own voice in the hall. She leaped from her chair, pressing a hand to her heart, waiting. It was the first time Larry had ever been in her home. As he entered the room, she tottered, going toward him, and at the same time she smiled.

"Celia!" he cried. He kissed her. Her face flamed and her eyes closed. He made a dashing figure, in a stream of sunlight, his golden hair flashing around his brow like a halo. He spoke quickly and his eyes sparkled with excitement.

"Dear Celia!" he cried, looking straight into her eyes. "I've something to say to you. I—I'm going on a journey! Isn't it splendid? Awfully good of old dad! I'm going to the Orient, Celia. I've been wanting to ever since I read the first word about it, in some tale or other, years ago! Blue seas, blue skies, jungles and brown faces! I just had to come right over and tell you. Know why? Because it wasn't so much the 'Arabian Nights,' nor Joseph Conrad, but your Japanese garden that set me off this way. By George, looking at those funny little Japanese trees! The little bridges! The pagodas! It's to be Japan first, Celia! Your little garden did it! Wish me luck. Lots of luck!" His outburst stopped abruptly and he added in sudden awe: "You are awfully pale, Celia. Why?"

She smiled. Then, taking his boyish face between her hands, she drew him toward her and kissed him twice on the forehead.

"Take care of yourself, child, and write to me—sometimes—"

A moment he looked wonderingly into her eyes. He kissed her again, solemnly, without understanding in the least. And the next moment he was off, with a great, boyish shout. She sank into a chair, her eyes fixed on the door through which he had gone. She wondered would he ever return and she knew that even were he to return it could make no difference—no difference!

False friends are like your shadow—they are with you only in the sunshine.

SHOOTS KEEPERS AND ESCAPES BUT IS LATER TAKEN

OSSINING, N. Y., June 22.—Orestes Shillitoni, "the paper box kid," shot two keepers and escaped from Sing Sing prison death house early today and was captured two hours later when he appeared stark naked before a frightful girl telephone operator at Ossining hospital and demanded lodging. The girl telephoned the prison.

Shillitoni was the first prisoner to escape from the death house since 1892.

Begging to be allowed to walk in the corridors, Shillitoni got out of his cell, then poked a gun in the faces of Keepers Bullard and McCarthy. The latter was shot in the stomach when he sprang upon the prisoner. Bullard was shot through the arm. Shillitoni left his clothes under the prison wall and dropped into the Hudson.

Northerners First Guards to

CAMP DOUGLAS, Wis., June 22.—
The three supply companies of the troops which mobilize today.

The Third regiment company of Superior was the first to arrive. The men of this company left the train at 1 a. m. yesterday and marched

The First regiment supply company of Milwaukee under Captain

The Superior men rejoiced over which preceded a public mass meeting at the capitol.

BAKER SEES WILSON

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Secretary of War Baker went to the white house at 9:10 this morning for a conference with President Wilson, after receiving from General Funston a message showing General
Pershing's report on the Carrizal fight was delayed by the fact that it must be sent part of the way by courier.

DE FACTOS MOVE NORTHWARD

WASHINGTON, June 22.—War department messages have revealed that some Carranza forces are on the move northward. This shift, however, is not taken to be alarming, nor of such magnitude as to make possible bottling up Pershing's column.

PRESIDENT REVIEWS GUARD

WASHINGTON, June 22.—In a drizzle of rain, President Wilson and Secretary Baker yesterday stood for half an hour before the White House to review the district national guard as it marched to mobilization camp at Fort Meyer.

UTILITY OF GASOLINE

A single gallon of gasoline will mix
300 cows, bale four tons of hay, mix
35 cubic yards of cement, move a ton truck 14 miles, plow three-fifths of an acre of land or generate sufficient electricity to illuminate a farmhouse for 30 hours.

CHANGE TIMES OF RACES

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 22.—
The call to arms which so nearly devastated the ranks of Yale's varsity crew has resulted in the times for the various races with Harvard here tomorrow being changed. The freshmen and junior races will come in the morning if possible and the varsity eights will row down stream at 5:45 p. m.

An acre of good fishing grounds at sea will yield more in a week than an acre of the best land will in one year.

"I have been reading and hearing about Columbia Records so much and so often—that I am going to decide right now for myself whether they are better recorded and have a better and more lasting surface than any I have ever had.

"I have been told time and again that they will fit my machine, and that there are hundreds of Columbia Records at the standard price of 65 cents. I am going to prove it.

"Within a very short distance of where I am right now there is a Columbia dealer. And I am going to see him. I own a talking ma-

the way of records, I want it."

STURGEON BAY IN GRIP OF TYPHOID

MADISON, Wis., June 22.—The city of Sturgeon Bay is passing through one of the worst typhoid epidemics in its history, and which in proportion to the population exceeded Milwaukee's recent outbreak in severity. With a population of nearly 5,000, this community has had about thirty typhoid cases and seven deaths from this disease since the first of the year. The epidemic was undoubtedly waterborne. The water supply for fire protection is taken from Lake Michigan and for drinking purposes is drawn from several wells. The wells are intermittently polluted.

Women sometimes take advantage of the rule that no gent should strike which will cook after the gas is turned off, thus sav-your fuel; will save waste in cooking and preserve the natural flavors of the food; will save one-half to two-thirds of your time.

We Want To Show You How This Is Done

Whether or not you're in need of a new gas range, you'll be interested in the
Chambers Fireless Gas
Range and will want one at some time. Come in

CHANGE TIMES OF RACES

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 22.—
The call to arms which so nearly devastated the ranks of Yale's varsity crew has resulted in the times for the various races with Harvard here
tomorrow being changed. The freshmen and junior races will come in the morning if possible and the varsity eights will row down stream at 5:45 p. m.

An acre of good fishing grounds at sea will yield more in a week than an acre of the best land will in one year.
